CEO LETTER

Our commitment to our most important asset—our people

We are steadfast in our commitment to building a dynamic workplace where all employees are inspired and encouraged to achieve their full potential.

This is how we define Leadership Culture at Cummins. To be successful, it must be embedded at every level of our company as helping our employees reach their full potential impacts our ability to innovate, serve our stakeholders and maintain our position as an industry leader.

THE ROLE OF LEADERS

This work starts at the top with our Board of Directors. In 2020, we renamed our Compensation Committee as the Talent Management and Compensation Committee, reflecting the much-needed emphasis on employees at our board level. The committee focuses on our employee experience, recently overseeing the creation of global implementation plans and process improvements in response to employee feedback.

We focus on leadership at all levels of Cummins because leaders play such a pivotal role in creating a great work environment. More than anyone, leaders shape the experience for employees across the company.

We have invested significant time and resources into leadership development programs. Diversity among the participants is intentional – spanning our various business segments, functions, and regions around the world and targeting employees at different levels in the organization. Our curriculum recognizes the need for today's leaders to build business acumen and emotional intelligence to successfully drive business results while effectively engaging with a diverse set of stakeholders.

The result of our investment is a resilient, experienced, agile and accountable group who is well prepared for complex global challenges. I am confident that the pipeline of leaders we have developed is one of our most sustainable strengths irrespective of industry changes and business cycles.

DIVERSITY, EQUITY AND INCLUSION

Diversity, equity and inclusion (DE&I) is our competitive advantage. We have a history of bringing people together with different talents to solve complex problems and drive innovation for our customers. We can do this better and faster by creating an environment for everyone to reach their full potential.

Our commitment to diversity enables us to attract the best talent, and our commitment to equity and inclusion positions us to deploy our talent more effectively than others. There are many companies working to solve complicated global challenges. What sets Cummins apart is that we are experts in using the power of difference to address tough issues – leveraging the capability of our leaders and the diverse perspectives of our teams to deliver the best solutions to customers around the world in a way that is customized to their culture, language and needs.

MEETING FUTURE CHALLENGES

Creating and maintaining a dynamic work environment has never been more important. We are entering an unprecedented period in Cummins' history. Climate change is the existential challenge of our time, and the companies that succeed in the future will deploy their diverse talent to solving complex problems while using fewer of the world's resources.

We are confident that our path to zero carbon emissions is the best for the planet, our stakeholders and Cummins' continued success. All our employees have a role to play in this. Our children and their children will look back and ask what we did to address climate change, and we must dedicate our talent and resources toward solving it.

This is the challenge in front of us and there is no company better positioned to confront it. ■

BOARD OF DIRECTORS

Creating a great workplace starts with the Cummins board

The Cummins Board of Directors is leading by example on human capital management, adding more women and ethnically diverse members while aligning its focus to creating dynamic work environments.

Working with our company leadership, the board for much of the past year has been taking a broader view of the plans, policies and practices impacting Cummins employees, with a special focus on the new and unprecedented issues around talent management and compensation emerging since 2020.

President and Chief Operating Officer Jennifer Rumsey welcomes back Cummins employees in Columbus, Indiana, in April 2022 after offices were allowed to reopen under recommendations by the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

These include the calls for racial equity and social justice that swept across the United States in 2020, as well as the movement toward flexible and remote working arrangements since the onset of the global pandemic two years ago.

GAINS IN BOARD DIVERSITY

The board ended 2021 with five women members—the most at any time in the company’s more than 100-year history—and then added a 14th member and a sixth woman in early 2022 when Cummins President and Chief Operating Officer Jennifer Rumsey joined the board. Later, long-time Lead Director Alexis Herman announced her retirement, effective at Cummins’ Annual Meeting May 10.

ALEXIS M. HERMAN

In 2022, longtime member Alexis M. Herman announced her retirement from the Cummins Board of Directors.

Herman, a former U.S. Secretary of Labor, joined the board in 2001 and served as Lead Director at the time of her retirement. In that position, she played an important role conferring with the Chairman on, and approving, board agendas as well as serving as the leader of the board’s Governance & Nominating Committee.

She guided the board through the sudden onset of the COVID-19 pandemic in 2020 as it provided vision, strength and stability. The board met 15 times in 2020 – three times its normal number of meetings. Herman is Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of New Ventures, LLC, a corporate consulting company.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS

Female board members in addition to Rumsey and Herman as of March 31, 2022, include Georgia R. Nelson, retired President and CEO of PTI Resources LLC, who joined the board in 2004; Karen H. Quintos, retired Chief Customer Officer of Dell Technologies, a board member since 2017; Kimberly A. Nelson, retired Senior Vice President of External Relations at General Mills, Inc., a board member since 2020; and Carla A. Harris, Vice Chairman and Managing Director at Morgan Stanley, who joined the board in 2021.

Members across other dimensions of diversity include Harris, Herman, Kimberly A. Nelson, Franklin R. Chang Diaz and Bruno V. Di Leo. Chang Diaz, a board member since 2009, is a former U.S. astronaut who today is President of the Ad Astra Rocket Company. Di Leo, a board member since 2015, is the Managing Director of Bearing North LLC, an independent advisory firm focused on business expansion. Prior to that role, he served as a Senior Vice President of IBM.

Taken together, more than half of the Cummins Board of Directors consist of women or members of other dimensions of diversity.

The board also has diversity in terms of business expertise and experience, including backgrounds in the automotive and transportation sectors, technology and IT, sales and marketing, academia and financial expertise.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS

Twelve of the 14 members including Herman are fully independent directors, consistent with the definition established by the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission and the New York Stock Exchange. Cummins' Chairman and CEO Tom Linebarger was the only board member employed by the company before Rumsey's appointment in 2022.

EXPANDING FOCUS

In 2020, the board broadened the focus of its Compensation Committee to include talent management. The Talent Management and Compensation Committee's expanded charter reflects both the critical role employees play in the success and sustainability of the company and the impact of the ongoing pandemic.

It's also consistent with Cummins' commitment to diversity, equity and inclusion, both in the recruiting and retention of talented employees and the establishment of great work environments. Finally, the committee has aligned its focus to the company's overarching Leadership Culture theme of "inspiring and encouraging all employees to reach their full potential."

Since 2020, Cummins has taken many steps in the talent management area including:

- Executed robust safety protocols for essential on-site personnel.
- Implemented a remote working environment for employees who could perform their duties off site.
- Launched a global mental health awareness campaign to destigmatize conditions such as depression and encourage employees to seek support offered by the company.
- Developed and piloted a diversity, equity and inclusion learning curriculum with a focus on awareness of privilege and unconscious bias.
- Extended key elements of Cummins' talent management programs to hourly employees to advance their capabilities and careers.

The challenge of attracting, developing and retaining the best employees has never been greater and the stakes are high for all of the company's stakeholders. Cummins' Board of Directors is determined to take a leadership role to meet that challenge, so the company flourishes for the next 100 years. ■

Our workforce strategy

Cummins' strategic roadmap is centered on the critical enablers to realizing our company's Leadership Culture and its vision of inspiring and encouraging all employees to reach their full potential.

OUR WORKFORCE STRATEGY

The company's workforce strategy cultivates an environment where all employees, regardless of employee type and location, know what is expected of them, are rewarded based on performance and have access to differentiated experiences, tools and leadership coaching to help them develop.

We embarked on a multi-year initiative to address the recognition that there is variation in how talent processes are applied to the hourly workforce, leading to lower quality outcomes and inefficiency, and impacting the company's ability to maximize the capabilities of a deep talent pool.

At a strategic level, we want the same talent and compensation policies, processes and mindset for the company's hourly workforce as Cummins has for its salaried and exempt workforce.

Cummins' aspirational goal is to build a robust talent pipeline where over half of the exempt vacancies are filled by internal hourly talent.

Leadership Culture is foundational to the company's workforce strategy. It speaks to the criticality of leaders at all levels of the organization creating

IMPROVING WELLNESS

Engaging employees and families in improving wellness

There are significant business benefits that come from having a workforce that is healthy physically, mentally, and financially.

A holistic philosophy that includes a broad approach to overall employee wellness considers an employee's whole self and the interconnectedness of these components. Cummins' strategy actively engages employees and their families in improving physical, mental and financial wellness.

We are on a journey to offer broad and personalized options to employees globally, utilizing sophisticated means of engaging employees that demonstrate the company's care and support.

IMPROVING WELLNESS

Employees and their families are aware of the resources and offerings available to them and have ready access to valuable knowledge, skills and resources. Examples include:

- Telehealth: Advancement in technologies enable accelerated expansion of telehealth adoption by global wellness providers, including Cummins' LiveWell Center. LiveWell, the company's health center in Columbus, Indiana (U.S.), not only treats illnesses but also helps employees and their families adopt healthier lifestyles.

- Financial wellness: Employee education that provides a full understanding of the total rewards provided by Cummins and the importance of financial planning for their future.
- Mental health: Mental wellness is intricately woven into how Cummins works, cares for people and how we encourage them to care for themselves. Targeted communication campaigns augment policies and programs designed to support and improve mental wellness and destigmatize negative stereotypes.

Leaders play a key role in enabling our wellness strategy. Developing self-aware and effective leaders who deeply care for the holistic wellness of their employees is central to this effort. Engaging leaders in detecting and addressing wellness topics within their teams is a necessity to drive a holistic wellness approach.

Learning and awareness programs equip leaders with the skills to be able to recognize and properly respond, demonstrating Cummins' value of caring. Expanded tools and resources integrated into the company's leadership development framework set up leaders to confidently and capably champion wellness within their teams.

Supporting the health of our employees

Cummins provides diverse programs aligned with our company's values and focused on supporting employees and their families based on their unique needs. Some of these include:

HEALTH CARE

Tiered health care costs so that more junior employees pay less for their premiums.

PARENTAL LEAVE

Paid parental leave for primary and secondary caregivers.

MEDICAL SERVICES

Advanced medical services from clinicians to support complex health care needs.

EMPLOYEE ASSISTANCE

Employee assistance programs with diverse providers that can meet a range of employee needs from race-related trauma to transgender transition support.

WORK-LIFE AT CUMMINS

New ways of working embrace this wellness vision, considering ergonomics, schedule and location flexibility, working across time zones, and effective work tools. Strong partnerships exist with Cummins' Information Technology, Health Safety and Environment, Integrated Services (Facilities) and Supply Chain functions to drive enterprise solutions.

This approach to holistic wellness requires evolving capability. Benefit program design will continue to evolve to meet emerging needs. Requiring deeper technical competencies within the company's specialty teams include helping leaders recognize and properly respond to the evolving needs of their collective team and individual employees.

Vendor partners who deliver wellness services on Cummins' behalf must be managed effectively, living up to the employee experience the company envisions. ■

LEADERSHIP

Developing enlightened leaders to drive Cummins' success

Cummins leaders must know themselves well. That is why all of our leadership development programs start by increasing self-awareness.

This helps Cummins leaders better understand who they are, what they value and what they expect of themselves and others. In turn, they are better able to inspire their teams to work toward their own and the company's goals.

At the team level, Cummins leaders learn to set bold targets that inspire their teams to excel and help our company meet its strategic objectives. Cummins leaders feel accountable for results and ensure that individuals, teams and organizations share that accountability.

Our leaders also learn to seek a diversity of perspectives, styles and strengths to ensure high performance and create better outcomes for both customers and the company.

Vice President Tracy Embree, President of the Cummins Distribution Business Segment, oversees the sales, service and support experience for the company's customers.

While diversity by its nature can create conflict, successful leaders embrace that conflict as an opportunity to find better solutions. They manage conflict well, aligning on decisions and effectively implementing them for better results.

Our leaders also learn to coach the employees they supervise, providing honest, constructive feedback that helps team members reach their personal goals.

We believe authentic leaders must create a safe and caring environment by being vulnerable and admitting mistakes, asking for help and being open to feedback, which the best leaders recognize as a gift that helps them and the company improve.

Ultimately, Cummins leaders learn they must continue to grow, because their leadership journey never ends. ■

The framework for great leadership

Investing in developing outstanding leaders has long been a driver of Cummins' success. The company's leadership development framework reflects three overarching company beliefs:

Leaders need to build business acumen and emotional intelligence to successfully drive business results and effectively engage with a diverse set of stakeholders.

Leaders have a responsibility to teach and coach others. By personally investing their time, leaders demonstrate their commitment to our leadership culture.

A leader's development journey starts with individual development then moves to team development. The company's multifaceted leadership training pairs long standing elements and newer components to meet emerging business needs.

Compensation and benefits

Compensation and benefits at Cummins are consistent with the company's goal of improving the physical, mental and financial wellness of employees throughout their lifetime.

Features include base and variable pay, medical coverage, paid time off, retirement saving plans and employee stock purchase plans. Cummins also does market compensation studies to assess market movement, pay equity and living wages.

LIVING WAGES:

In 2018, Cummins conducted a living wage analysis globally to make certain our employees make a living wage where they live and work. The assessment was incorporated into Cummins' compensation structure to ensure current and new hires never fall below this threshold. A $15 per hour living wage was calculated for our U.S. employees in 2019, although most positions pay significantly more.

PUTTING IT ALL TOGETHER

Working to be the company of the future, now

Just as Cummins delivers innovation for its customers, the company must have that same mindset for its greatest asset—Cummins’ people.

Employees thrive when empowered to balance their work and personal needs. We are reimagining the way we work to provide more flexibility, agility and inclusion.

WORK ENVIRONMENT

Cummins strives for a work environment where:

- All employees have flexible work options that fit their preferred way of working, whether on-site at a facility, a hybrid of on- and off-site work, or off-site at their chosen location.
- Employees feel included and have an equal sense of belonging, where physical location is not a barrier to contribution or advancement.

- Company facilities safely bring people together to collaborate and complete work that cannot be done elsewhere, through spaces designed for teamwork.
- Technology infrastructure enables connections, reducing travel and relocation, so employees spend less time away from families and loved ones.
- Employees are attracted and retained by Cummins’ culture, providing the company increased access to a larger, more diverse talent pool.
- We achieve our diversity, equity and inclusion aspirations through the company’s hiring and development initiatives to make diversity at every level a competitive advantage.

EFFECTIVE LEADERS

Cummins believes leaders should be:

- Authentic role models and advocates for new ways of working, intentional about their own work practices, and flexible to meet the needs of others.
- Open communicators to ensure clarity to work schedules and locations. Committed to helping their teams balance work and personal needs.
- Supportive of employees' unique needs, demonstrating Cummins' Leadership Culture as they work to establish individualized and dynamic work arrangements.
- Visible and accessible to employees at all levels of the organization, enabling two-way interactions regardless of work location.

- Attentive to the mental and physical health of employees and their families, providing tools, resources and services to improve wellness.

A COMBINATION THAT WORKS

When effective leaders and a dynamic work environment come together, Cummins believes the result is:

- World class leaders leading their teams to deliver excellence to customers while creating the feeling of belonging necessary for employees to reach their full potential.
- Support at key moments in an employee's work experience delivered through caring, personalized, human-centric assistance, enabled by easy-to-use technology for more routine tasks. ■

We listen to our employees at Cummins

The company's holistic approach focuses on understanding if we are helping every employee reach his or her full potential. We also use what we learn, in combination with other data, to better understand our company culture and gain insights into our workforce.

Listening takes place in three main ways:

ACTIVE LISTENING

using tools such as surveys.

PRIVATE CONVERSATIONS

typically initiated by our employees.

TWO-WAY COMMUNICATION

through forums and other initiatives.
